

Homework: Input-Output Machines

1. An input-output machine takes a number [input], operates on the number, and changes it to a new number [output]. Below are some input-output machines. Figure out the rule for what the machine did to the input.

Example:

